Some verbs take a preposition before the object. These prepositions are called dependent prepositions and are usually followed by a noun or ing form. There are several such verb + preposition combinations. Some verbs take a preposition before the object. These prepositions are called dependent prepositions and are usually followed by a noun or ing form. There are several such verb + preposition combinations. This grammar exercise tests your understanding of common verb + preposition combinations.

1. Do you believe ..................... ghosts?

   in
   on about

2. She spent years caring ..................... her sick husband.

   about
   for
   of

3. This spray will protect you ......................... most insects.

   of
   from with
Verb And Prepositions Exercise

4. He has yet to recover ...................... his illness.
   of
   from
   with off

5. He won the national bravery award for saving his friend .................. drowning.
   from
   of
   at

6. He worked hard to succeed ...................... life.
   at
   in
   on

7. I don't approve ...................... your conduct, young man.
   with
   of
8. He suffers ..................... asthma.

10. Please don't make a noise. I want to concentrate ................... my studies.

11. My husband and I can't agree ....................... anything but we love each other.
Verb And Prepositions Exercise

on
with
about

12. Please refer ................................ the glossary for more information.

at
with
to

Answers

1. Do you believe in ghosts?
2. She spent years caring for her sick husband.
3. This spray will protect you from most insects.
4. He has yet to recover from his illness.
5. He won the national bravery award for saving his friend from drowning.
6. He worked hard to succeed in life.
7. I don’t approve of your conduct, young man.
8. He suffers from asthma.
10. Please don’t make a noise. I want to concentrate on my studies.
11. My husband and I can’t agree on anything but we love each other.
12. Please refer to the glossary for more information.