

Whose and who's

These words are often confused. Whose is a possessive word used in questions and relative clauses. Who's is a contraction of who is or who has.

I have got a cousin been to almost all continents.

whose who's

2. car is parked outside?

Whose
Who's

3. 'I am going to buy an apartment.' 'With money?'

whose who's

4. Do you know anybody going to Canada this week?

whose
who's

Whose and who's

5. For benefit was this done?

whose
who's

6. design do you think looks the best?

Whose
Who's

7. I know a boy father serves in the army.

whose who's

Answers

1. I have got a cousin who's been to almost all continents. (= I have got a cousin who has been to almost all continents.)

2. Whose car is parked outside?

Whose and who's

3. 'I'm going to buy an apartment.' 'With whose money?'
4. Do you know anybody who's going to Canada this week? (= Do you know anybody who is going to Canada this week?)
5. For whose benefit was this done?
6. Whose design do you think looks the best?
7. I know a boy whose father serves in the army.